DIAMONDS RECOVERED.

Referred to Lincoln Park, Indiana, and found by a lawyer.

A Chicago (Ill.) special says: According to a story made public here on Thursday morning, Lawyer Frank C. Smith has just been successful in recovering and digging up $8,000 worth of diamonds that had been buried in Lincoln Park, this city, by a client, Andrew J. Anderson, who last November was sent to the penitentiary on a fifteen-year sentence for burglary.

The motive for hiding the diamonds was fear on the part of Anderson that they would be found by the police. He had hidden them in a clump of bushes, wrapped the diamonds in a piece of brown paper, dug a hole with his hands in the earth at the roots, covered the hole with the same paper, and then pointed directly to the spot where the package was buried. In spite of four failures on the part of the lawyer, Anderson persisted in declaring the diamonds were there, and he went down to Joliet, maintaining the truth of the story with dogged pertinacity.

The matter dropped, but a few days ago Mr. Smith, who is at the park, and from the force of habit he wanted to pick up the package. His hands trembled with excitement as he hastily unwrapped the paper and exposed four large diamonds and a monster emerald. The jewels were still in their settings. There was a solitary ring, a solitary breast-pin, a pair of earrings, and an emerald pin. The gemstone was all of the first water, handsomely cut, deep and pure. Their value was estimated at $8,000.

In the month of June, 1884, L. W. Walker, of Covington, Ky., left Milwaukee for Waukegan, Springs with Mrs. Walker. She placed her jewelry in a small hand-bag, which was carelessly thrown on the seat beside her. When she was gathering up her belongings to leave the car the hand-bag was missing. Anderson always maintained that he did not steal it, but that one of his gang was in the same sleeping-car, saw Mrs. Walker's careless act, and taking advantage of her absence for a moment filched the bag.

Mr. Smith promptly communicated with Mr. Walker, who had removed to Lexington and thence to Lincoln Park, Va. Mr. Walker has come on to Chicago to identify and claim his property. Anderson is stated to be a member of a wealthy family in New York. The restoration of the diamonds is thought to be part of a movement to secure him a pardon.

LOGAN says he has no feeling of antagonism towards the Administration. We violate no confidence in stating that the Administration does not care whether he has or not.

A BURGULAR SHOT DEAD.

A northern correspondent says the press continue to cry that the pistol must go, but it does not go. Beg your pardon; it does go off, if reports from the North are reliable.

"Why didn't GLADSTONE and the Chair fix upon the Hon. JAMES G. BLAINE as an arbitrator to define the Afghan boundary?" Because BLAINE might claim everything for himself.

"The papers are discussing the question as to which speak least of themselves—the people of Boston or the people of Chicago." Perhaps the less known about either city the better.

The Philadelphia Press says: "Civil service reform under this Administration means simply to get the Republicans out and the Democrats in with as little fuss as possible." Well, if it is not reform, what is it?

The Macon Telegraph says: "What this generation needs is a watch that when it gets to 12 o'clock at night will throw a hand-spring and start back the other way." Are the Macon bar-rooms compelled to close at 12 o'clock at night?

New Books. Down the Ravine. By CHARLES E. ROBERT CRADDOCK, author of "In the Tennessee Mountains," &c. Boston: HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. 1885. Price $1.

If you wish to pass a pleasant hour or two, read this book.

For sale by WEST, JOHNSTON & Co. The Revised Version of the Old Testament. With Marginal Notes and the Readings and Renderings preferred by the American Revisers printed as foot notes. In four parts. Part I. Genesis to Deuteronomy. Part II. Joshua to Judges. Part III. Samuel to Kings. Part IV. Isaiah to Malachi. New York: HARVARD BROTHERS. 1885. Price 20 cents.

It has been well said that the strange thing about this Revised Version is not that it differs so much from the King James Bible but that it differs so little. Nevertheless, there are changes enough to render the new version exceedingly interesting.

For sale by WEST, JOHNSTON & Co. The Professor. A Novel. By CHARLOTTE BROXTON. With illustrations. Same publishers. Price 20 cents.

For sale by WEST, JOHNSTON & Co. A Second Life. A Novel. By Mrs. ALEXANDER. Author of "The Wooding O'." &c. New York: HENRY HOLT & Co. 1885.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: The position of the American Institute of Homoeopathy upon the question of medical education is highly creditable to the homoeopathic school of practice, if the emphatic remarks of numerous speakers of yesterday afternoon are a fair criterion of the sentiment of the members of that branch of the profession. Representatives from Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, Ann Arbor and other medical colleges and universities, urged in strong language the duty of the general practitioner to refuse admission to their offices as students of young men not qualified by a thorough preliminary education to take a high rank in the profession of medicine.

"See the Mighty West Advancing!"

What a crowd! Evers, kids, weak and aching backs, painful joints, tormented muscles, sleepless nights, cruel sweats, dizziness, lack of appetite! This disagreeable procession may all be prevented by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters. Brown's Iron Bitters is the most powerful of all the blood-purifiers. It is the most powerful of all the blood-purifiers. It is the most powerful of all the blood-purifiers.

The reservoir, an immense affair, covering an area of many acres, supplied water for the high-land ditch, which traverses a large tract of land adjacent to the mountains.

The Richmond Dispatch.

We think all Virginia journalism can justly take pride in the enterprise which can give to so small a city as Richmond one of the best newspapers of the whole country.

A fierce contention the energy which has lately had such significant manifestations in the size and make-up of our leading Virginia paper. Some of the spirit of that enthusiastic journalistic enterprise which in the past gave the country the Herald and Tribune seems to be throbbing in the pulse of our metropolitan contemporary.

In the various trial it comes to the front in a very striking manner, with reports so full and with every point of interest so thoroughly brought out by illustrations that nothing is left to be desired by the most eager curiosity. The people of Virginia owe such enterprise a debt, and one that could be best paid by doubling the subscription list of the great daily.

We never cease to be amazed at the brilliant phase of its new life. This article is intended as a suggestion to those who can afford the luxury to order a copy of the daily to be sent to them for sufficient time to have an opportunity of seeing something of the budding energy of new Virginia.

This is not an advertisement of the Dispatch, but an unsolicited contribution out of our store of fast-ascending admiration.—Amherst News Era.

The Vindicator plums the line held by the Record and the people of Virginia. Let that be the test to which all candidates before the convention must submit, and to know how they stand let the nominating speech be made, as the Dispatch suggests, the day before taking the vote. A mistake on either of these points might give the State to the Republicans.—Halfway Record.

Horsford's Bread Preparation.

THE STATE GEOLOGIST OF NEW JERSEY

gives the following directions for making a cheap but excellent filter for purifying drinking water: It is the bottle, and is made by tying a string wet with turpentine around the bottom of a quart bottle and breaking out the bottom. This is done by lighting the string, and when the flame has encircled the bottle, dipping it in cold water. Layers of fine cotton-wool must then be placed in the bottle until a wad is collected, that rests on the shoulders of the bottle and over its neck. Now dissolve a cup of alum in hot water and pour the solution into a cup of cold water. This makes a filtering substance. I use alum because it is the only thing which will precipitate all the impurities of water to the bottom.

For every gallon of water that is desired to purify, add a teaspoonful of the filtering fluid, and stir it until every particle of the animalcule is precipitated. This usually takes about five minutes. Then run your gallon of water thus treated through the filter, and you will have your water free from all impurities."
